BPW Foundation CEO Participating in Clinton Global Initiative America Meeting
Deborah L Frett to Focus on Small Business, Girls, Women and Women Veterans

Washington, DC -- Business and Professional Women's Foundation CEO, Deborah L. Frett has been invited to participate in the 2012 Clinton Global Initiative America (CGI America) meeting in Chicago this Thursday and Friday, June 7 and 8.

CGI America is an annual meeting bringing together leaders from the business, foundation, NGO and government sectors to develop solutions that address unemployment, prepare Americans to be competitive global citizens and rethink current models that shape our economy and society. This year President Clinton has called on participants to strategically integrate the lens of girls and women throughout the program. This approach is called the Girls and Women (G&W) Champion model. Champions are asked to represent the G&W lens in their respective Working Group

Frett, who has been named a Girls and Women Champion, is part of the Small Business Working group. She also spoke at the Girls & Women in America: Pre-Meeting Strategy Session on Thursday, June 7th between 8-9:30am. As head of the first foundation to conduct research about working women, Frett brings unique perspective and background to her role of looking at workplace ideas and solutions through the Girls and Women's lens.

On Thursday evening Frett will attend the "Championing Veterans: America's Next Generation Leaders" event that will bring together a broad range of CGI Working Group representatives who have an interest in or focus on veterans. Frett will share information about BPW Foundation's *Joining Forces for Women Veterans and Military Spouses Mentoring Plus™*. This groundbreaking program connects women veterans and military spouses with working women mentors and subject matter experts (SMEs). Participants receive career development support and guidance that will enable them to find and keep meaningful employment.
